

an environmental impact statement for any action that may have a significant effect on the human environment.⁸⁵ The Commission has categorically excluded certain actions from this requirement as not having a significant effect on the human environment, including the promulgation of rules that are clarifying, corrective, or procedural, or that do not substantially change the effect of legislation or the regulations being amended.⁸⁶ Because the final rule promulgated by Order No. 1977, and revised herein, falls within this categorical exclusion, preparation of an environmental assessment or an environmental impact statement is not required.

V. Regulatory Flexibility Act

53. The Regulatory Flexibility Act of 1980 (RFA)⁸⁷ generally requires a description and analysis of final rules that will have significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The RFA mandates consideration of regulatory alternatives that accomplish the stated objectives of applicable statutes and minimize any significant economic impact on small entities.⁸⁸ In lieu of preparing a regulatory flexibility analysis, an agency may certify that a final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.⁸⁹

54. The Small Business Administration’s (SBA) Office of Size Standards develops the numerical definition of a small business.⁹⁰ The SBA size standard for electric utilities is based on the number of employees, including affiliates.⁹¹ Under SBA’s size standards, a transmission owner covered under the category of Electric Bulk Power Transmission and Control (NAICS code 221121)⁹² is small if, including its affiliates, it employs 500 or fewer people.⁹³

55. In Order No. 1977, the Commission, pursuant to RFA section 605(b), certified that the final rule would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.⁹⁴ This order on rehearing does not disturb that conclusion. For the same reasons cited in Order No. 1977,⁹⁵ we continue to find that the final rule, as revised herein, would not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.
